Danielle Gilbert Lands Federal Clerkship in her Hometown of Austin, Texas

Danielle Gilbert (3L) will be clerking for U.S. Magistrate Judge Mark Lane in the Western District of Texas in Austin next year.

"I am thrilled to share the news that Danielle Gilbert, our Law Review Editor in Chief, has landed a federal clerkship," said Director of Career Services Beverly Bracker. "Danielle set her mind on a clerkship pretty early on in law school, and she worked extremely hard to make this happen."

"I am so excited about this clerkship," said Gilbert. "Working for a judge is my dream job. I enjoy the neutral, contemplative writing that a judicial clerkship entails. When I got a post-graduate clerkship offer from Judge Mark Lane, a U.S. magistrate judge in the Western District of Texas, I immediately accepted. Judge Lane's 25 years of experience in Austin's legal community made clerking in his chambers very desirable to me."

Gilbert is thrilled that this opportunity will take her back to her hometown of Austin, Texas where she can be near her family.

"Getting a clerkship required some planning and preparing," said Gilbert. "I knew that I wanted to be a judicial clerk, so I applied for as many judicial externships as possible. I had completed three judicial externships by my 3L year, and I believe those experiences are why Judge Lane hired me."

This summer Gilbert held a prominent internship with the Department of Justice Executive Office for Immigration Review in San Francisco, through its Summer Law Internship Program (SLIP).

Gilbert says that she will miss San Diego and all of her TJSJL friends and colleagues when she leaves next May, but that she is "excited to see all of our careers begin."

Skilled TJSL Alums and other Top San Diego Attorneys talk Entertainment and Sports Law Licensing

By Jeremy M. Evans '11

New Lawyers Division, Board of Directors, SDCBA CLE Co-Chair

On Thursday, August 22, 2013, the New Lawyers Division (NLD) and the Entertainment and Sports Law (ESL) Section of the San Diego County Bar Association (SDCBA) hosted a continuing legal education (CLE) panel on "Licensing: Protection of Entertainment and Sports Law Assets" at the SDCBA Bar Center. The event was well-attended by an engaged audience and included a webcast of listeners as well.

Eric Eastham of Mintz Levin, Co-Chair of the ESL section of the SDCBA and a San Diego Daily Transcript 2012 Outstanding Young Attorney, introduced each of the panelists. Eastman assisted NLD Board of Director and CLE Co-Chair Jeremy Evans '11, the organizer of the event, in putting the program together. Thomas Jefferson Alumna Amanda Thompson '07 also aided with logistics for the panel.

Andrew Skale of Mintz Levin, a 2013 San Diego Super Lawyer, started off with a discussion on the foundation of intellectual property and ways to protect a client's image proactively and after infringement has occurred. Skale added that Junior Seau's estate is one of the firm's clients, which involves issues surrounding post-mortem rights in California. Winnie the Pooh is also a client of Mintz Levin. Skale mentioned that there is no such thing as a "poor man's copyright" and advised that clients and lawyers should be active in monitoring and protecting their client's images and work by simply handling the easy and relatively inexpensive registration process of trademarks and copyrights. Skale closed by stating that the industry is small and stressed the importance of maintaining credibility and professionalism as "you will likely work with the same folks again."

Thomas Jefferson alumna Lacy J Lodes '08 of LacyJLaw presented after Andrew Skale. Lodes manages a voluminous IP portfolio and is currently assisting CONSOR in the NFL retired player's right of publicity litigation. She began with some practical examples, specifically a story about Paris Hilton and her image on a Hallmark Card that was not approved for licensing (permission to use) prior to the card being sent out to the public for purchase. Lodes added that Hilton made a small fortune in a rights of publicity recovery showing how an image can be litigated and protected, with a profit to show from it. In addition to other comments, Lodes gave some practical advice. When she begins a client matter, she first looks at the law and compares what one state does as compared to another. She says that California is far ahead of other states in protecting a person's image, but noted that there are no rights of publicity laws on the books in any state.

Jonathan Hadaya of Autosport Development, LLC spoke next. Hadaya is the Co-Chair of the ESL Section of the SDCBA and represents NASCAR driver Kyle Busch, among other top race car drivers. Hadaya's client Kyle Busch currently holds several records, one of which is for most race wins in a season across the top three NASCAR series with 24 wins, which he accomplished in 2010. Hadaya spoke on the financial aspects of licensing and added that licensing is not only a great way to actively protect your client's image, but also a way to make money in endorsement and sponsorship deals. He provided numerous examples of how licensing can cut across different industries and tie products and multiple clients together. One question he received from the audience was whether there is a conflict of interest when representing clients (i.e., an athlete for example) while creating and developing relationships with businesses and companies as sponsors. Jonathan quickly quipped that there is not a conflict because you are representing one client (the athlete), while advocating for that client with a non-client business or company. He closed by saying that companies and athletes benefit each other and that it is a very lucrative industry.

Eric Eastham of Mintz Levin, Co-Chair of the ESL section of the SDCBA

Thomas Jefferson alumnus Emile Nicolaou '06, Senior Director of Business & Legal Affairs at Playboy Plus Entertainment, Inc., closed the presentation. Prior to law school, Nicolaou worked with the NFL, Pacific-10 Conference (now PAC-12) and EA Sports, organizing and executing national sports tournaments. Nicolaou spoke in depth about "Fair Use" exceptions to copyrighted and protected images and things. He gave some practical examples of fair use exceptions and discussed what each exception meant. He encouraged the audience to research the exceptions, but added that it would be better to just ask for a license and pay for it or offer a credit in a book or movie rather than to risk getting sued when banking on an exception.

Overall, the event was a terrific learning experience.

Dean William Byrnes Has Three New Books Published

National Underwriters released two tax books authored by TJSJL Associate Dean William Byrnes and Adjunct Professor Robert Bloink of the Graduate Tax Program.

"These market leaders mark a milestone of a major re-organization of material for ease of research and understanding" according to National Underwriters.

2014 TAX FACTS ON INVESTMENTS

2014 TAX FACTS ON INSURANCE & EMPLOYEE BENEFITS

"We have included a new section on captive insurance, on reverse mortgages, on international tax and estate issues DOMA, as well as expanding the section on ETFs and on precious metals & collectibles," Byrnes said. "Moreover, we will soon announce the newest title of Tax Facts that will publish in Fall - addressing entrepreneurs and their small business tax issues.

"Tax Facts has attracted over 20,000 subscribers – and the Tax Facts Online portal has been well received by financial planning professionals. I think this is a testament to National Underwriter's approach of contextualizing client problems in a Question – Answer format."

Both publications are now available as e-books, as an alternative or in combination with print.

Dean Byrnes is also pleased to announce the publication of INTERNATIONAL WITHHOLDING TAX TREATY GUIDE, SECOND EDITION by LexisNexis.

The second edition of International Withholding Tax Treaty Guide, authored by Dean Byrnes and Dr. Robert J. Munro, includes new binders with new chapter structures of completely rewritten tax information and analysis. The second edition of Foreign Tax & Trade Briefs includes a new structure for all 110 country chapters to reflect the evolution of national tax systems since 1948. The International Withholding Tax Treaty Guide has been expanded to include many new countries to match the robust list of Foreign Tax & Trade Briefs, and its footnote numbering has been amended for brevity and modern coherence.

Moreover, International Withholding Tax Treaty Guide subscribers will receive new chapters of analysis and planning based on the OECD Model DTA articles and major trading country jurisprudence that are most relevant to corporate tax counsel, addressing topics such as capital gains, dividends, interest, rents, leasing income, royalties and permanent establishment, as well as developing topics such as new standards of information exchange. Corporate counsel may combine these publications with the LexisNexis Matthew Bender publication Tax Havens of the World to form a complete international tax planning and risk management library.

Dean Byrnes said, "The Second Edition completes my re-write process of this book to re-structure the citation architecture for a modern approach to tax treaty analysis. Over the next two years I will author an in-depth, comparative analysis of tax treaty articles, to provide practitioners and arbitrators a go-to treatise for global corporate planning.

In 1974, Matthew Bender added a third binder to Foreign Tax & Trade Briefs, the International Withholding Tax Treaty Guide, to specifically address the important role of tax treaties in tax risk management that had developed in the sixties. By 1975, nearly one thousand tax treaties had been signed between countries based on the OECD's Model with an additional 200 treaties in force based on the League of Nations Models. Moreover, many (former) territories had become independent, developing countries with the ability to establish their own tax treaties. There are now more than 3,200 tax treaties, of which 2,900 are signed and in effect with the remaining 300 yet to become effective by official legislative approval."

Dean Byrnes noted that Jason Miller, a third year Thomas Jefferson student, just returned from an embedded externship, called a stagier in Europe, with PriceWaterhouseCoopers in Istanbul, where he was working with a managing tax partner and Dean Byrnes on the Lexis publications.
